Turen til Castleguard 1984

Trip to Castleguard cave 1984

Stein Erik Lauritzen and Iain Schrøder participated in the Castleguard expedition in the beginning of April 1984. Their main task was to carry out analyses of the ice in the ice plug in situ. A 1 m long 10 cm diameter core drill weighing 4 kg., together with stainless steel containers, a heater and water analysing equipment was brought to the ice plug with help from other expedition members, especially Kevin Ewok who was a great help. The trip took 5 days; the physical and psychological strains were considerable.
