Dykking i Kilde 2 Skrim 1985

Dykking i kilde 2

At Skrim west of Oslo 1985 Stein, Dag and Ronny dived in resurgence 2 to take photos where they had previously started investigations. A great deal of cool helped Dag on the return when he lost the line. Unfortunately, despite several dives camera trouble caused nil result.

Two weeks later they proceeded to investigate res. 2 from the previous turning back point at 55 m on to 80 m in an attempt to link up res. 2 with res. 3, a distance calculated to be 121 m. They reached 80 m and during subsequent dives 90 m in both right and left passages.

Resurgence 3 and the associated Mortenskulpen were looked at also despite British reports (1981) that said there was no way in. A report on this attempt is to follow in another issue of this magazine.

Later photos were taken successfully in res. 2. All in all very worthwhile practice for the Glomdal trip, their main event for 1985.
