

Norsk Grotteblad nr 26, Juli 1993

På tur i fjellet eller: Grotterier

The article is from a trip to the well-known Svarthammerhola near Fauske, a cave characteristic of large halls and an old glacier. This article presents other parts of the cave in a humoristic way. During the trip they examined several small passages, and they also found new limited systems. As "moles" they tried to penetrate "everywhere" which led to acute regrets of all the cakes, chocolates, biscuits etc. they had eaten in the period before.