

Norsk Grotteblad nr 48, Mai 2007

Et lite fall i Beiarn

A little fall in Beiarn

Never trust rock in Beiarn. In Beiarn the rock is loose. When Anders Westlund should pass a wet place in Øvre Stormdalshullet, he placed his foot on a faulty rock. The rock broke, and he fell downward. It was not more than half a meter down! Unfortunately, he landed with his foot on a rock with his entire body weight. Painful! The X-ray showed two broken places – a bone called metatarsus - in the right foot. After 7 weeks he removed the plaster.